Trump Still Strong – Kasich/Cruz Rise (Trump 42% - Kasich 19.6% - Cruz 19.3% - Rubio 9%)

EAST LANSING, Michigan --- Donald Trump continues to lead by 22 percentage points going into the Tuesday Republican Presidential Primary Election in Michigan. Trump (42%) has dropped 5 percentage points since our last poll Thursday night before the FOX News Channel debate in Detroit, but still is ahead of Ohio Governor John Kasich (19.6%) who gained 6%, Texas U.S. Senator Ted Cruz (19.3%) who gained 5%, Florida U.S. Senator Marco Rubio (9%) who lost 6%, and Dr. Ben Carson (4%) while 1% is voting for someone else and 5% are undecided according to the latest Mitchell/FOX 2 Detroit - Michigan Poll.

The IVR (Interactive Voice Response) automated survey of 663 likely March 8, 2016 Michigan Republican Presidential Primary voters was conducted by Mitchell Research & Communications on Sunday afternoon and evening, March 6, 2016 and has a Margin of Error of + or – 3.8% at the 95% level of confidence.

“After winning races in Louisiana and Kentucky yesterday by much narrower margins than predicted, Donald Trump (42%) continues to have a strong lead in Michigan despite having what many described as a weak debate performance last week. Trump has also been the subject of strong attacks by what Trump would call the Washington establishment. Meanwhile, John Kasich (19.6%), who has spent almost the entire week in Michigan, has now moved into a tie for second place with Ted Cruz (19.3%). Kasich has increased because of the time and energy he has spent in Michigan and because like Cruz, he had a strong debate last Thursday night. Cruz is also helped by his victories in Kansas and Maine yesterday. Marco Rubio (9%) has fallen into fourth after doing poorly in all four primaries and caucuses yesterday and having a weak performance in the debate.

“Trump looks likely to win, but Cruz has a strong ground operation in Michigan. The big problem for Kasich and Cruz is that they are both doing better and therefore making it more difficult for each to win. Meanwhile, Trump’s support doesn’t seem to have fallen as it did in all four states yesterday where he did not do nearly as well as pre-election day polling said he would do,” Steve Mitchell, CEO of Mitchell Research & Communications said.

Here are some key demographic breakouts:

- Trump continues to be stronger with men (45%) than women (40%), but Trump dropped 5% with each since last Thursday before the debate.
- Fifty-nine percent of Trump voters strongly agree that they “are mad as hell and they won’t take it anymore.” Second are Cruz supporters (38%). Clearly, the angry voters support Trump.
- Voters are solidifying behind their candidates. Trump (87%) is ahead of the other candidates in the percentage that say they are “definitely” voting for their candidate. Cruz (76%), Kasich (74%), and Rubio (73%) follow Trump.
- We asked voters if they would identify themselves as Evangelical Christians to see who is winning with that demographic group in Michigan. On Thursday, Trump (44%) led Cruz (21%) with evangelicals. Tonight, Trump (34%) still leads (27%), but by a smaller margin.
- We also wanted to see if the disagreement Trump had with Pope Francis would impact Trump’s support with Roman Catholics and found that it clearly did not. Trump (45%) leads Rubio (8%) Kasich (21%) and Cruz (18%) with Catholics. Trump (51%) is stronger with non-church goers and weakest with Protestants (36% of the vote).

Methodology:

Mitchell Research & Communications used a sample of likely voters in the November 2016 Michigan General Election. Our goal is to spread as wide a net as possible to assure we survey voters who may not have voted in primary elections before. A quadruple filter was used to determine that we were surveying only likely Republican Party Primary voters.

- First voters had to say they were registered voters. If they were not, the phone call ended.
- Then, they were asked if they were definitely voting, probably voting, not sure yet, or definitely not voting in the November General Election. If they were “definitely not voting” the phone call ended.
- Then they were asked if they were definitely voting, probably voting, not sure yet, definitely not voting, or if they had already voted by absentee ballot in the March 8th Presidential Primary. If they were “definitely not voting” the call ended.
- Finally, they were informed that they could only vote in on party’s primary, not in both. They were asked if they were voting in the Democratic Party Primary, the Republican Party Primary, or if they were not sure. If respondents said “Democratic” or “not sure” the call ended, so we were only polling those who said they were voting in the Republican Party Primary Election.

We asked Mark Grebner of Practical Political Consulting, considered to be the top list vendor and leading voter demographer in Michigan, and the person who supplied us with our sample, to give us his estimate on voter turnout by age, gender, and race.

We compared final results to determine if the data needed to be weighed to reflect the demographics of the likely voters. In this poll, weighting was done by gender because the sample had a higher percentage of women than we anticipate.

Federal law only permits us to call land lines. Because likely Primary voters are older, almost six-in-ten (59%) are 60 or older and eight-in-ten (81%) are older than 50, there are sufficient land line voters to get an accurate sample. We do not have to make any assumptions of likely voter turnout.

1. Dr. Ben Carson announced today that he quote cannot see a path forward end quote and will not participate in the Fox News debate on Thursday night. He said he is not going to suspend his campaign but will discuss his future in a speech on Friday. Knowing this information, if the Republican Party Primary was being held today, which candidate would you be voting for, or have you already voted for by absentee ballot? I read a list of the five candidates still running in alphabetical order including Carson since he is not yet suspending his campaign. If you would NOT be voting in the Republican Primary press 1, if you would be voting for or have already voted by absentee ballot for Ben Carson press 2, Ted Cruz press 3, John Kay-sick press 4, Marco Rubio press 5, Donald Trump Press 6, if you are not sure press 7.

(In reading GOP cross tabs the third number down is the correct percentage of vote for each candidate. For example, looking at the far left column, Carson is at 3.8%, Cruz 19.3% etc. By age, Carson is getting 8% of the 18-39 year old vote, 12% of the 40-49 year old vote etc. Among all voters, 7.4% are 18-39, 14.2% are 40-49 etc.)
